

NAIL YOUR COLOURS TO THE MAST FOR PAT SMULLEN

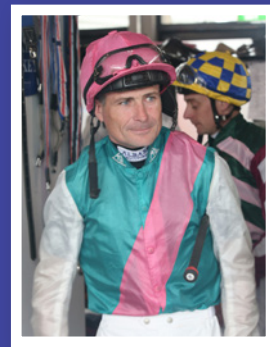

In March 2018 nine-time champion jockey Pat Smullen was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer and, in the face of adversity, has since displayed the same courage, resilience and positivity that made him one of the best jockeys in the world. An inspiration to racing and sports fans, and those currently undergoing cancer treatment, Pat's ambition is to both raise awareness of pancreatic cancer and provide vital funds to aid cancer trials and research.

Longines Irish Champions Weekend at Leopardstown and The Curragh on Saturday 14 and Sunday 15 September will include a number of fundraising activities and events with all proceeds going towards Cancer Trials Ireland, the leading Irish cancer research trials organisation, for their work into pancreatic cancer trials and research.

Please take the opportunity to get involved and show your support in a novel way. For €100 you can have your racing colours included in the race cards at both Leopardstown and The Curragh and 'nail your colours to the mast' for Pat Smullen and Cancer Trials Ireland.

OTHER WAYS TO GET INVOLVED...

AUCTION ITEMS

Longines Irish Champions Weekend will include an online auction to also raise funds for Cancer Trials Ireland and we would appreciate auction items such as racing and sporting items and memorabilia, concert and sports event tickets, art, hotel stays, rounds of golf and VIP days at the races.

If you would like to donate an auction item, please contact Carey-Ann Lordan, Red PR on info@redpr.ie or call 00 353 (0)52 618 4343.
